

Blenko Glass Company

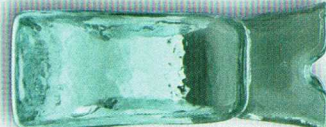

Exquisite color, skilled craftsmen, and imaginative designs have made Blenko famous in the time-honored craft of hand blown glass. Over the years, talented designers have developed contemporary new designs that continue to be hand blown in our factory. The uniqueness of hand blown glass cannot be compared to that of machine formed glass: a process which produces items all exactly alike but without personality. Because our glass is made in small batches and our processes are performed by hand, you can be sure that each piece is an individual work of art.

When glass has been hand blown it is common to observe small air bubbles, lines, or individual marks left by our craftsmen. These are not flaws, but rather the distinctive nature of the hand blown process, which identify and magnify the distinctiveness of each piece of glass. In a world of increasing automation and standardization, we at Blenko pride ourselves in paying particular attention to the forms and designs, which stay true to the tradition of hand blown glass. For over 100 years Blenko has maintained the tradition of hand made glass. We welcome you to become a part of our tradition.

Crackle

We dip our hot glass into water causing the glass to crack. We then reheat it, fusing the glass back to a stable form but retaining the intriguing visual impact of those many and diverse once cracked lines. Many pieces are available in crackle. The catalog indicates if it is available with the presence of a "crackle or plain" in the description. Blenko has produced crackle glass for decades.

Key West

We place a layer of colorful tangerine (red to amber) over our bold Seabreeze blue to create a multiple layer, bright new look. It is named in tribute to the glowing red-yellow sunsets seen from the Florida Keys when looking out over the blue-green gulf water. New in 2016.

Fades

Fades are when our skilled artisans gather one color of glass, blow it to a sheer layer then cover that with a second color. The result is a vibrant two-tone object. Fades exist in several combinations of compatible glass. Blenko has used this technique intermittently since the 1970s.

Blenko has a world class history of designs and of designers who have shaped our glass. We wish to pay homage to our past by slightly modifying but emulating some of our best past designs. This year we look at Blenko mid-century and offer the gurgle and chess piece bottles and the bent neck decanter first popular half a century ago. These forms often command high value on the secondary market. Blenko Glass believes making these classics available to a new and possibly younger audience is as important today as it was decades ago. The bottles are the design work of Wayne Husted and the decanter is a Winslow Anderson design. Join us in celebrating our heritage with our annual Retro line selections and embracing the future with new and current designs.

Gaffer Glass

Gaffer is reportedly a corruption of "grandfather" and, in glass, denotes the master craftsman in charge of a shop, or team, of hot-glass workers. Blenko has long offered exquisite designer created glass but we also have the whimsical and masterful hand creations of our own glass artisans, our Gaffers. NOTE: each is unique and handmade. In some items we cannot offer a color selection, colors are selected by our artisans. On those items..Trust them, we do.
